Notes from CLA President Kim Spencer

January 2024

Happy New Year!!!

Each new year brings new changes that we all must face and I am one of them!

I am excited to serve as the 2024 President of this amazing organization. I want to thank Dan McCarthy for dedicating his time and for serving as the CLA Board President for the last two year. I know I have some big shoes to fill. Luckily, I have big feet!

I have been in the green industry for over twenty years but growing up on a small farm in southern Ohio I have been around agriculture/horticulture my whole life. For the last four years I have been working at Benchmark Landscape Construction as one of four Maintenance Account Managers as well as Seasonal Color Manager.

I would like to welcome our two new board members, Amanda Murphy from MJ Design Libby Turf from Ahlum and Arbor. I look forward to hearing what ideas they have to help make the organization even better!

How many of you have been enjoying the Ohio weather we have been having this winter season? I know my sinuses have not been. I also have three very eager little kids at home that are desperately awaiting some snow to go sledding. If we do not get too many frigid days this winter, it could make for an interesting season with lots of insects that did not freeze over the winter months! Something to keep in mind as get closer to the start of spring.

Speaking of spring, the Home and Garden Show is just around the corner! This year the show takes place from February 17th through February 25th. I hope that you are all able to get the chance to stop out and walk through all 8 of the spectacular gardens. The theme this year is "Private Spaces, Beautiful Places". And if that is not enough, the sweet fragrance of the spring blooming flowers will surely get you in the mood for springtime!

Another helpful reminder for this time of the year - If you haven't already sent in your seasonal color order for the summer, you are probably behind....just like me!!

If you have any topics you would like to hear more about, or ever have any questions for me please email me at kspencer@benchmarkohio.com. I look forward to hearing from you and having a great 2024 with everyone!

2023 USDA Plant Hardiness Zone Map

How should I use the map when growing plants?

All Plant Hardiness Zone Maps (PHZM) should serve as general guides for growing perennial plants. They are based on the average lowest temperatures, not the lowest ever. Zones in this edition of the USDA PHZM are based on 1991-2020 weather data. This does not represent the coldest it has ever been or ever will be in an area, but it simply is the average lowest winter temperatures for a given location for this 30-year span (1991-2020).

Consequently, growing plants at the extreme range of the coldest zone where they are adapted means that they could experience a year with a rare, extreme cold snap that lasts just a day or two, and plants that have thrived happily for several years could be lost. Gardeners need to keep that in mind and understand that past weather records cannot provide a guaranteed forecast for future variations in weather. They should consult with other knowledgeable producers and gardeners (e.g., established nurseries or Master Gardeners) or extension services (see the links on the homepage) with extensive expertise with conditions at their locales.

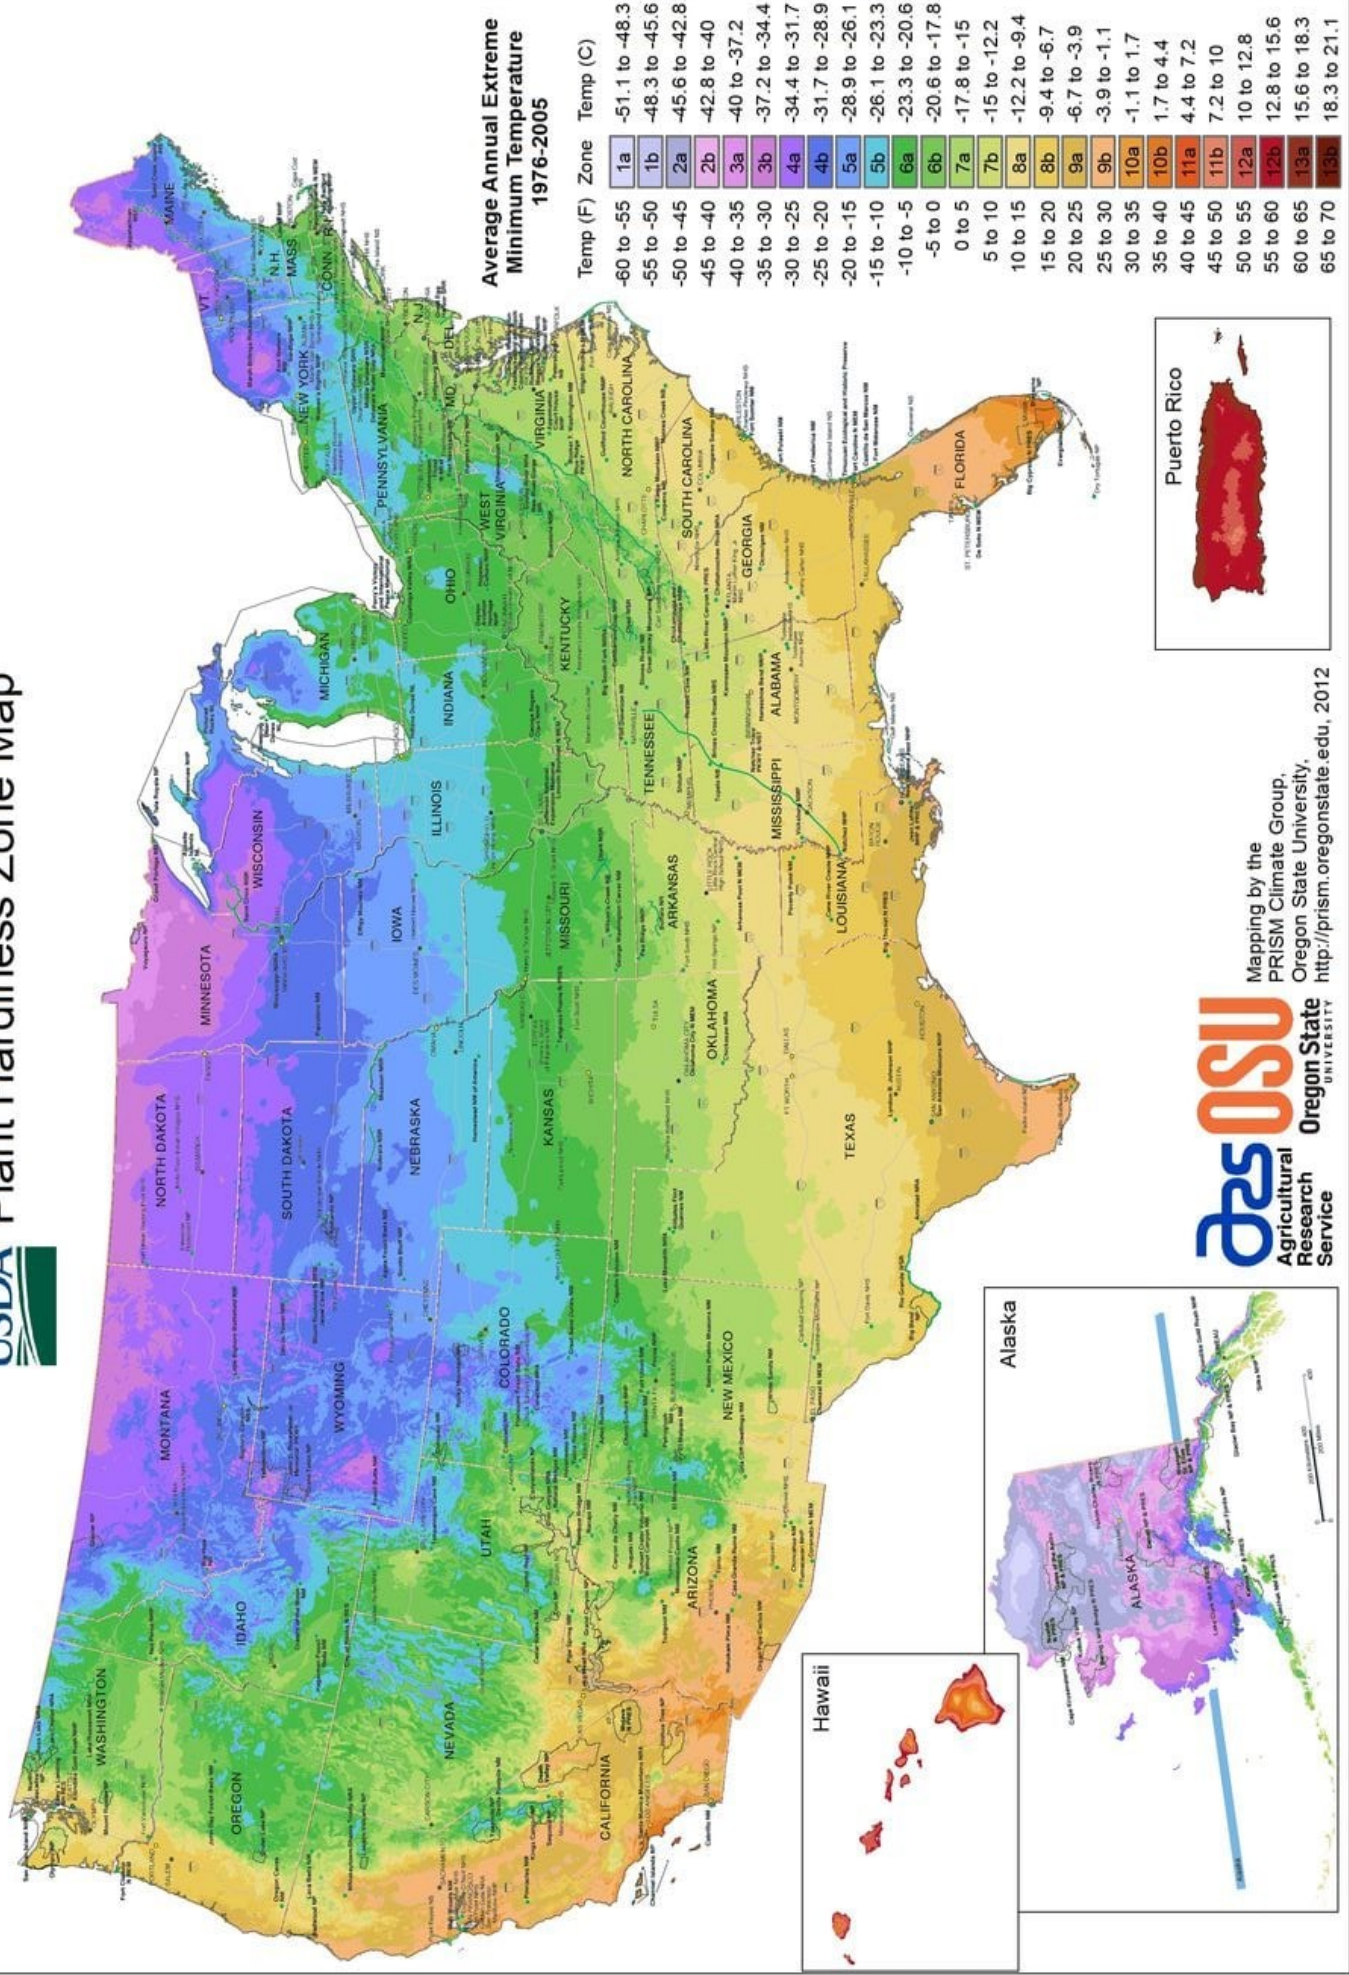

Furthermore, gardeners should recognize that many other environmental factors, in addition to hardiness zones, contribute to the success or failure of plants. Wind, soil type, soil moisture, humidity, pollution, snow, and winter sunshine can greatly affect the survival of plants. Warm season heat and moisture balance are particularly important in this regard. The way plants are placed in the landscape, how they are planted, and their size and health can also influence their survival.

- Light: To thrive, plants need to be planted where they will receive the proper amount of light. For example, plants that require partial shade that are at the limits of hardiness in your area might be injured by too much sun during the winter because it might cause rapid changes in the plant's internal temperature.
- Soil moisture: Plants have different requirements for soil moisture, and this might vary seasonally. Plants that might otherwise be hardy in your zone might be injured if soil moisture is too dry in late autumn, and they enter dormancy while suffering moisture stress.
- Temperature: Plants grow best within a range of optimal temperatures, both cold and hot. That range may be wide for some varieties and species but narrow for others.
- Duration of exposure to cold: Many plants that can survive a short period of exposure to cold may not tolerate longer periods of cold weather.
- Humidity: High relative humidity limits cold damage by reducing moisture loss from leaves, branches, and buds. Cold injury can be more severe if the humidity is low, especially for evergreens.

Gardeners or nursery growers interested in more detailed information, or examples for how the PHZM could be applied as a decision-making tool for planting, can consult a publication developed for the 2012 version of the PHZM:
